Questions 29 - 34 are based on the following passage.

Intelligent, sociable animals

Chimpanzees are primates that are closely related to humans. They are intelligent and very sociable. They use facial expressions, vocalisations, body language, grooming, kisses and pats to communicate with members of their group.

Chimpanzees are endangered species because many of their habitats are being destroyed. Chimpanzees are omnivores (meaning they eat plants and meat). They look for food in the jungle, eating leaves, fruits, seeds, tree bark, plant bulbs, tender plant shoots and flowers. They also eat termites and ants, using long sticks to extract them from grounds and trees. Chimpanzees drink water by using a chewed leaf as a sponge to sop up the water.

Dolphins are mammals, not fish. They are warm-blooded like man. Even though dolphins are warm-blooded, they need to conserve their body heat in colder water. Like most whales, the dolphin's body is surrounded by a thick layer of fat under the skin to help keep them warm.

They eat fish and squid, swallowing their food whole. They are highly sociable animals, living in groups called pods.

Dolphins are on a level with chimpanzees and dogs. They can learn to perform certain actions. They learn best when they are rewarded with food.

Their often friendly appearance and seemingly playful attitude have made them popular among young children.

Life's Brief Candle

To-morrow, and to-morrow, and to-morrow,
Creeps in this petty pace from day to day
To the last syllable of recorded time,
And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
The way to dusty death. Out, out, brief candle!
Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player,
That struts and frets his hour upon the stage,
And then is heard no more; it is a tale
Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury,
Signifying nothing.

Questions 38 -40 are based on the extract from the short story The Pencil.

That afternoon Zahid asked his grandmother for some money. He told her it was for a book, but when he arrived at the store, his eyes caught hold of a long, red pencil. Suddenly, he felt sad again and tears rolled down his cheeks.

No longer did he need a book, or a pencil, or even a ruler. None of those things could help him the most. At last he spotted it - a three inch pocketknife under the glass counter. He bought it right away.

The knife would be just what he needed to keep Dolah away from him. And he might even get more use out of the knife than the pencil. Children are scared of knives, so he would make the blade as sharp as he could.

He continued going to school, but not to study. His primary victims were children smaller than himself. He would laugh when they let out a cry or a scream.

Section B: Summary

[10 marks]

[Time suggested: 30 minutes]

Lightning is one of the worst natural killers, causing at least 25000 deaths a year worldwide. Lightning claims more victims each year but as it usually strikes one person at a time, it continues to keep a low profile.

Malaysia has the second highest number of lightning strikes in the world, after Central Africa as highlighted by Richard Kithil Jr, US National Lightning Safety Institute.

Malaysians need to be more wary of its dangers. When you first see lightning or hear thunder, stop all activities. Don't wait for the rain to begin before suspending activities.

If you are outdoors, avoid water, high ground, open spaces and all metal objects. Find shelter in a big building or in a full enclosed metal vehicle with windows completely shut. If lightning strikes nearby, you should crouch down, put feet together and place hands over ears to minimise hearing damage from thunder.

If you are indoors, stay away from doors and windows. Turn off, unplug and stay away from all electrical appliances and equipment. Do not use the telephone.

So, these essential lightning safety tips should be followed to keep you safe if lightning strikes.

(Adapted from Sunday Star, March 2010)
